Wear gloves and sturdy shoes.

"360 ROUNDS": CAPT. JOHN PELHAM & THE STUART HORSE ARTILLERY AT THE BATTLE OF WILLIAMSBURG

SATURDAY, MAY 2 @ 10 AM-NOON

On March 23, 1862, the Stuart Horse Artillery was mustered into service with one battery and the dashing, 23-year-old John Pelham of Alabama its first Captain. The concept of horse artillery wasn't new, but through the vision of General "JEB" Stuart and the leadership of Capt. John Pelham, the Stuart Horse Artillery redefined mobile firepower during the Civil War. The battery was first tested here at Williamsburg on May 5, 1862. Join the author and historian Sarah Kay Bierle as she explores John Pelham's life, tactics, and military legacy and focuses on his artillery's effects at Williamsburg and other fights on the Virginia Peninsula during the spring and summer of 1862.

BETWEEN TWO INDEPENDENCE DAYS: THE FOUNDERS, LINCOLN, & THE NECESSITY OF EMANCIPIATION

SATURDAY, JUNE 27 @ 11 AM-1 PM

Guided by his interpretation of the Founders' intent, Lincoln held lifelong antislavery views, but they underwent a radical transformation during the first year of the Civil War. Author and historian Glenn David Brasher's presentation will analyze the pivotal window between July 4, 1861, and July 4, 1862, and uncover the specific military pressures that forced a pragmatic president into becoming the "Great Emancipator."
